HAVE A GOOD TIME

VACATION FOR FARMER AS IMPORTANT AS FOR OTHERS.

ARE ABLE TO AFFORD IT

Expense is an Investment That Means Greater Profits—Need It Worse Than Others.

This is the open season for vacations. But there is one group of men and women, the farmers, in which there are thousands who do not know what a vacation looks like. They never saw one, and they never, only in their dreams, expect to see one. It isn't because they can't afford a vacation and it isn't because they do not need one. In most cases it is just because the farmer and his wife have made themselves believe that they "can't get away."

Farming is as monotonous and exacting work as any. There are longer hours and these hours must be spent out in the heat in continuous and heavy toil. And physical exertion is not all, for the mind of the farmer must be busy with the many problems of various crops, various kinds of live stock, the home and those other interests which should, but too often do not, demand attention from the progressive farmer as a member of his community.

Perhaps as good a time as could be chosen by the farmer for his vacation would be in August, when the growing crops are laid by, the harvesting and threshing has been finished and the hay is up. The hired man and his family can take care of things and go ahead with the regular work of the field. If there is no hand, one may be hired for this purpose. It may be things will not be managed and cared for just as efficiently as by the owner, but the farm employee can be depended on as well as the man lower down in the business office.

The isolation of rural life makes it more necessary that the farmer and his family get a change and a rest. They see little of other people, they live to themselves more than other persons. The vacation will give the communion, relaxation and recreation which they as participants in the tention of American life need.

The farmer can go to the mountains or the seashore or to the lakes as cheaply as can anyone else. The expense is really an investment in new interests and a rested and more energetic mind and body which will enable him to produce greater profits. While the trip will not be one of study, yet the farmer will without effort get new ideas as he passes through other fields to places where he should meet other men and deal with the same problems as his own. And meeting with things and men which are unusual to him on the farm will have the same desirable effect as it does on the business man from the city.

Too many farmers who are looking forward to any sort of a cessation from farm life, plan to stay close at work until they accumulate enough to enable them to move to town. Rather than taking the short annual vacation, they look forward to taking their rest all in one period. Too often this proves a failure, for the farmer, adapted to the life and interests of the country, feels the call of the soil and the crops and herds.

The farmer, like other business men, must learn to see profit in pleasure as well as in labor. While "everybody's goin' fishin'" let him with his wife and his boys and girls pack up and go, too.

JUVENILE COURT ABOLISHED.

Ray County, Misouri, Court Rules That Probate Judge May Not Have Additional Duties.

What is thought to be the first decision of its kind in the state of Missouri was rendered here yesterday. Circuit Judge Frank Divelbiss ruled that for a probate judge to act as judge of the juvenile court, as provided by the last session of the state legislature for counties with less than 50,000 inhabitants, is unconstitutional. He based his decision on a statute which says that the probate courts of the state shall have uniform power, and he held that a probate judge in exercising additional functions as juvenile court judge would be transgressing the provision for uniformity.

The decision grew out of an attempt of the court to provide for taking the three children of Mrs. Mary Renfro from her on the grounds that they were not receiving proper care.

George Crowley is the probate judge of Ray county and the proceeding was a friendly one, because he was anxious to learn whether his new office was constitutional.

SMOKING AND DRINKING MARK.

Convivial Ones Consume 143,300,000 Gallons of Whisky and Brandy, 64,500,000 Barrels Beer.

The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarets and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based on internal revenue receipts.

The drinkers of the country consumed the enormous total of 143,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy, an increase of 7,500,000 gallons over the previous year and breaking the former high record of the fiscal year 1907 by 7,300,000 gallons. Sixty-four millions five hundred thousand barrels of beer flowed down the throats of lovers of the amber brew, exceeding 1911's great record by more than 1,000,000 barrels.

Smokers puffed into space 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarets. This was 217,000,000 cigars and 2,790,000,000 cigarets more than ever before had been consumed in a single year. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco, or 9,400,000 pounds more than the consumption of 1912.

Chewers likewise held their own, disposing of 33,200,000 pounds, an increase of more than 3,000,000 pounds.

The number of saloons decreased by 18,000, the retail liquor dealers numbering only about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the federal government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,960,000.

Elmo Light Plant Sells for $101.

The Elmo electric light plant was sold by Sheriff Wallace at an execution sale Friday for the sum of $101. It was bought by the Lee Electric Light company of Clarinda, Ia. This company already furnishes College Springs and Blanchard with light, and it is probable that it will extend its wires from Blanchard to Elmo, furnishing that town with power from the central Clarinda plant.

The sale was in payment of a $65 debt for which Jud Wren was awarded judgment against J. L. Fuqua at the last term of court.

Back From Des Moines.

John Murrin returned Friday from a week's visit at Des Moines, Ia., with his daughter, Mrs. G. R. Cornelius. Mrs. Murrin will remain for another week's visit with her daughter and will return to the city, being accompanied by her.

Miss Gladys Goforth and Miss Lola Cranor of Albany, State Normal students, are spending the week end at home.

Miss Alice Tilson of St. Joseph, who has been visiting the families of her brothers, W. R. Tilson and J. L. Tilson, returned home Friday evening.

NEW WHEAT SHOWN TO BE OF EXTRA FINE QUALITY.

YIELD IS LARGER, TOO

Thirty-Nine Bushels Average On the Wright Farm—One Firm Has Contracted for Over 150 Cars.

Nodaway county is going to have bumper crops, at least that is the report you hear all over the county. While the storm of last Sunday night did some damage, still it was not as bad as it was thought to be. The crops never looked better, and a trip over the county will soon convince you of that fact.

The wheat yield promises to be much bigger than last year, and there is a larger acreage than ever before. U. S. Wright, on his farm east of the city, had thirty-nine bushels to the acre for fourteen acres. Threshing of the wheat has just started.

Leet & Cook, grain dealers here, have contracted for a large amount of wheat. They received some of it this week and it tested sixty-one pounds to the bushel. This is a good quality of wheat. They have repaired and fixed over their elevator near the Burlington depot and expect to send out many more cars than they did last year. Already over 150 cars have been contracted for. These people will also receive wheat at other places in the county.

Fred Armstrong, living east of the city reports that he will only get about half an oats crop. He intends to start work on his oats in the next day or so. He says corn is fine and that the wheat is also in excellent condition.

Attended Brother's Funeral.

Thomas Wells of Stillwater, Okla., who was called to Maryville by the death of his brother, W. R. Wells, has returned home. He also visited the family of his son, William Wells of Hopkins.

Mrs. Ed Long and daughter, Miss Zella, of King City, who have been guests of their cousin, Mrs. J. E. Melvin, went to Barnard Friday evening to visit J. E. Long and family.

THE BAILEY OBSEQUIES.

Rev. Gilbert Cox Came From Kansas City to Conduct Service—Several Out-of-Town Relatives Here.

The funeral services for John W. Bailey, who died Thursday evening at his home on Lawn avenue, were held Friday afternoon at the family home and were attended by many old friends and relatives.

Rev. Gilbert S. Cox of the First M. E. church, who is spending his vacation in Kansas City, came to conduct the funeral. A quartet composed of Mr. P. O. Landon, Mrs. Charles Moore, Miss Jannette Mutz and Mr. John Mutz, with accompaniment by Miss Lettie Walkup, sang "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus Calls Me Over the Mountain." The minister brought a beautiful message from the 23d Psalm.

Interment took place in Oak Hill cemetery. The pallbearers were three sons of the late Mr. Bailey, Charles Bailey of Ravenwood, Ira Bailey of Maryville and Benjamin Bailey of Clarks, Neb.; Oscar Koch of Fredonia, Kan., Thomas Wachtel of Rosendale and Milton Wachtel of Savannah.

Other relatives from a distance attending the funeral were Mrs. Milton Wachtel and Miss Ina Wachtel of Savannah, John Wachtel of Rosendale, Mrs. Emma Koch of Fredonia, Kan.; Mrs. John Bloomfield and family of Parnell, Henry Wachtel, Robert Wachtel, Arthur Wachtel and George Wachtel of Graham, Charles Patterson and Mr. Stalks of Orrsburg.

LIVES IN FILTH!

FLY MORE DANGEROUS THAN RATTLESNAKE.

KILL HIM IN THE EGG

The Time to Swat the Fly is Before He Gets Wings—Kills More Than Bullets.

The following questions and answers were prepared by the Indiana state board of health and have been widely copied:

1. Where is the fly born? In manure and filth.

2. Where does the fly live? In every kind of filth.

3. Is anything too filthy for the fly to eat? No.

4. (a) Where does he go when he leaves the surface closet and the manure pile and the spittoon? Into the kitchen and dining room. (b) What does he do there? He walks on the bread, fruit and vegetables. He wipes his feet on the butter and bathes in the milk.

5. Does the fly visit the patient sick with typhoid fever, consumption and cholera infantum? He does—and he may call on you next.

6. Is the fly dangerous? He is man's worst pest and more dangerous than wild beasts or rattlesnakes.

7. What disease does the fly carry? He carries typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaint. How? On his wings and hairy feet. What is his correct name? Typhoid fly.

8. Did he ever kill anyone? He killed more American soldiers in the Spanish-American war than did the bullets of the Spaniards.

9. Where are the greatest number of cases of typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaint? Where there are the most flies.

10. Where are the most flies? Where there is the most filth.

11. Why should we kill the fly? Because he may kill us.

12. When shall we kill the fly? Kill him before he gets wings—kill him when he is a maggot in the manure pile—kill him while he is in the egg state.

13. How? Keep the stables dry and clean and don't allow any manure to stay on the premises longer than one week. Have all other filth and trash accumulating on your premises removed or burned at least once a week.

14. If your neighbor fails to comply with these rules and allows flies to breed on his premises to visit you, screen your doors and windows and keep them out.

Y. M. C. A. ENTERTAINMENT.

Given Friday Night in the First M. E. Church Warranted a Larger Attendance.

The entertainment given in the First Methodist church Friday night under the auspices of the Normal Y. M. C. A. warranted a larger attendance than it had. The lecture by Rev. Lester M. Jones of Pickering, who has been a student at the Union Theological seminary of New York City for several years, was very good. His subject was "The Future State in Great Religions." Rev. Jones gave a resume of the religions of the world, and placed special emphasis on the work of the Christian religion and its future position among the religions of the world.

The other numbers on the program were a reading from the Merchant of Venice by Prof. Harry Miller, an organ solo by Prof. P. O. Landon and a vocal solo by Harry Mutz.

Fred Claycomb Married.

Fred Claycomb, who is employed at Garten & Trusty's restourant, was married this week at Topeka, Kan., to Lena C. Carder, who formerly was employed by C. Sweitzer in his cigar factory. They returned to Maryville Friday and have gone to housekeeping on South Buchanan street.

Mrs. J. D. Bolin and daughters went to Arkoe Thursday evening to visit Mrs. Glen Swinford.

We Should Be Agitated.

American smokers consumed 7,707,000,000 cigars during the year 1913, or 217,000,000 more than ever before. At 5 cents each this would amount to $385,350,000. These same smokers touched their matches to 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Another increase, this time of 2,790,000,000.

But we should be agitated. A cable dispatch from London says that the English women, who have been cigarette smokers for a number of years, have added pipes and cigars to their tobacco list. And at that the cigars are fifty-centers.

Clean Teeth and Clean Mouths.

The tooth brush is of more value to the health of a child than dumbbells or Indian clubs.

Pure air in a school room is impossible as long as the mouths of the children are allowed to be in an insanitary state.

In economic value to the community oral hygiene is second to none.

Sixty per cent of the absentees from school can be traced directly to defective teeth.

Healthy teeth mean a healthy body.

The mouth is the gateway to the body; follow the methods of every good housewife. Keep the gateway clean.

Ten cents invested in a tooth brush may mean $10 saved on a doctor bill.

John F. Dowden recently had J. F. Stephens paint the picture of his fine stallion, Hastings Boy No. 22389, and the picture will be on exhibition at the museum at St. Joseph. It is a good one. Mr. Stephens is well experienced in this kind of work and has done work for Nodaway county breeders for many years. About thirty or forty years ago Mr. Stephens did the same kind of work for the late James Prather, when he had a number of race horses.

The women of the First M. E. church will have charge of the dining tent at the coming Maryville Chautauqua, August 9-17. Manager Landon of the Chautauqua gave the contract to them Friday afternoon. Breakfast, dinner and supper will be served each of the nine days. The women of the First Baptist church had this work every year but two since Maryville's first Chautauqua in 1905. One of those years was when the Redpath bureau put on the program in a tent by the Franklin school park, and the next year when the Buchanan Street Methodist church women served. It is a tremendous task and one that should be appreciated by Chautauqua goers.

C. W. B. M. Meeting.

The C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church held its regular monthly meeting in the church parlors Friday afternoon with Mrs. M. T. Henderson as leader. Anderson and Mrs. George Hartley on special topics concerning the Bible chairs the board has in its church universities, mountain schools, and schools among the Japanese on the Pacific coast and those in Jamaica and India. Mrs. J. W. Ray conducted an interesting quiz. Plans were commenced for next year's work that were aided considerably by a letter from Mrs. O. W. Lawrence, state secretary for the C. W. B. M., who wrote encouragingly to the members here of next year's prospects for the large work. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. R. L. McDougal, during the business session was very gratifying to all, as it showed the amount of $84.90 used in the board's work for the quarter ending June 30. One new member was added, Mrs. C. A. Barbour. An enjoyable social hour followed with Mrs. James B. Robinson, Mrs. George Hartley and Mrs. F. P. Reuillard as hostesses. The annual picnic was to have been held Friday but has been postponed to a later date.

Still Working for Playgrounds.

The Mothers' Circle held its monthly meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John P. Price. On account of the illness of Mrs. W. C. Van Cleve, the president, Mrs. Leslie Dean presided. During the business meeting, Mrs. Berney Harris, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported what that committee is doing toward securing the old cemetery by the Jefferson ward school for a public park and playground. If this can be done it has been suggested that a tablet be erected in one corner of the grounds, bearing the names of those buried there. It was voted to use the funds on hand for the purchase of a slide, a contrivance on the order of "shoot-the-chutes," for one of the school grounds of the city. The Circle declared itself in favor of a safe and sane Fourth for another year. A committee was appointed to arrange for a picnic for the members of the Circle and their families about August 1. The program was to have been a patriotic one, but was not followed altogether, as Mrs. Jesse Colden, whose topic was to have been on patriotism, was unable to be present and Mrs. Omar Catterson gave instead a reading on better babies contests in Iowa. Roll call was responded to by relating incidents from the lives of our presidents.

Mr. T. C. Hollowell Married.

Mr. T. C. Hollowell, a well known traveling salesman out of Maryville, was married on Wednesday, July 2, to Mrs. Anna Hollowell of St. Paul, Minn., who was the widow of his cousin, E. J. Hollowell of St. Paul, who died eight years ago. It was not the intention of the bride and groom to announce their marriage until the first of September, when Mrs. Hollowell will arrive in Maryville to make her home, owing to the marriage of her son, which will occur shortly before that time in St. Paul. But the secret came out in some way and The Democrat-Forum was given permission Friday by Mr. Hollowell to announce the happy event. Mrs. Hollowell has four sons, two of them dentists and two yet in college.

The new officers for Rebekah lodge were installed Friday night for the term by District Deputy Laura Moore as follows: Mrs. Gertrude Irwin, N. G.; Miss Frankie Thompson, V. G.; Mrs. Nettie Warren, R. S. N. G.; Mrs. Dora Vert, L. S. N. G.; Mrs. Jennie Reece, R. S. V. G.; Miss Nannie Pride, L. S. V. G. One candidate was initiated, Miss Lulu Miller. After the work of the evening a luncheon was served.

To Mother's Birthday Party.

Mrs. J. B. Moore left Saturday for Dubuque, Ia., to spend several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Waggoner, who will be 91 years old the 21st day of August. Mrs. Moore has been with her mother on her birthday anniversary for five years, which is always observed by the children and friends.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die.

At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well.

I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardui. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardui is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years.

Your druggist sells it. Please try it.

BLUFFED WAY TO FREEDOM

Wat Bowie, a scout for the Confederate army during the Civil war, was a young Maryland lawyer at the time the great conflict began. After months of successful work, he was captured and taken to Washington, and sentenced to be hanged. He made his escape, and in "On Hazardous Service," Mr. W. G. Beymer tells of the weeks that he was followed by secret service men and small details of Federal cavalry, and how, by his very audacity and quick wit, he escaped recapture.

He blundered into a camp of them one morning at dawn, and saw instantly that retreat was impossible; they were ready to open fire with a dozen revolvers. Without hesitation, he strode up to the men and shouted, indignantly:

"You make mighty free with my rails! With all this wood round, you did not need to burn my fences!" He seemed very angry.

"Who are you?" a corporal stammered.

"The owner of the rails, of course!" And then, apparently somewhat mollified, he went on: "Well, well! War is war; but don't do any more damage than you can help, boys." He sat down with them to their breakfast, and chatted with them pleasantly. One of them asked if he had seen Wat Bowie, and described him accurately. At the description, they all stared at him, and moved uneasily, in doubt as to what was to be done. He tallied with the description in every respect. But his insolence in walking up to them and upbraiding them for burning "his" rails made them doubt their own eyes.

"Why, yes," he drawled, "Wat Bowie was in these parts last week. I know him well. They say he has gone to the north part of the county, where he hails from. I don't know, though, as to that."

Then rising and stretching himself, he looked down into their doubt-filled eyes and laughed at them, laughed in their very faces, and said:

"I'm glad you all met me on m' own land. You might have made trouble for me elsewhere, for they all say I look like him a lot. Good-by, boys! Good luck!"—Youth's Companion.

HAVE GREAT FAITH IN TREE

Natives of Egypt Believe Saint With Healing Powers Has a Dwelling in the Branches.

The tourist who is ferried over the Nile from old Cairo to the island of Rhoda is shown the Nilometer, which dates from Roman times, and the old gardens near it, and is then hurried back to resume the usual route of the guides. By so doing, however, he misses one of the most curious sights in all Cairo—the huge tree known to the native as the mandura, says Wide World. It is so called from a saint who is supposed to work miracles and effect cures upon those who visit this tree and perform certain traditional rites. The patient must offer to the saint the cloth which enveloped the affected limb, pluck off two leaves from the tree and tie them on the diseased part with another cloth, leaving the first behind. The natives have great faith in the tree and the visitor will always find one or more present, performing the rites of supplication. The tree, while not very high, has a large spread, and, as it is partly concealed by others near it, even the visitor who has knowledge of its existence is apt to give up the search in despair, though he may be within a short distance of it. The tree at present is entirely denuded of its leaves except in the upper branches, while the trunk and lower branches are almost concealed by the mass of rags that are nailed to it and there left to rot in wind and weather. Patients may be seen pressing their faces on these or rubbing the afflicted parts against them, as they mutter prayers and gaze earnestly up among the branches, where they believe the saint's spirit resides. The upper branches are plentifully decked with little pennons or colored flags, which give it quite a festal appearance.

Closing Freiberg Mines.

Gluckauf reports that the mines of Freiberg, Saxony, will be closed at the end of September this year, but probably one mine will be kept open for the purposes of the Bergakademie and the Bergschule, says the Engineering and Mining Journal. The Freiberg mines were first opened in 1168 and in the next century they were actively exploited. In 1572 they made their maximum production. In 1791 they supported a population of 5,187 souls. In 1878 there were 38 mines in operation, employing a technical staff of 250 men and about 6,000 miners and laborers. The fall in silver in 1893 affected these mines severely and since then their production has been steadily dwindling. From beginning to end they have yielded over 5,000,000 kilograms of silver. Many American engineers obtained their education at Freiberg.

Well?

"Your wife gave a beautiful address."

"Yes?" replied Mr. Meekton.

"She said it was woman's especial duty to be kind to dumb animals."

"I heard about it."

"But you don't seem impressed."

"It doesn't seem to be anything that interests me—not unless you are going to put husbands in the dumb animal class."

WOMAN'S PROBLEM

Stripped Herself of Her Little Artifices to Save a Young Girl.

By FRANK FILSON.

"Come here, girl; don't look at me as if I were a dragon!"

Elsie went forward and looked at Miss Ingleby with an expression of so much mingled hatred and admiration that the elder woman flashed her white teeth and her eyes twinkled exactly as they did in the posters with which almost every hoarding in the United States had been decorated at one time or another.

She went forward defiantly, but a moment later somehow she found that she was crying upon Miss Ingleby's shoulder, while the singer caressed her and patted her hair gently.

"So I have stolen her beau away from her and she wants him back!" whispered Miss Ingleby. "Isn't that so, dearie?"

Elsie raised her head. "I shouldn't mind if—if you meant to marry Tom," she sobbed. "But I know you are only amusing yourself with him, because Tom is much younger than you."

"How old are you, child?" inquired Miss Ingleby.

"Twenty," said Elsie defiantly.

"And Tom?"

"Tom is twenty-five. And you must be nearly thirty," said Elsie. "So I know you don't mean to marry Tom. And we were to be married at Christmas, and now—now he won't speak to me."

The match between Elsie Lennon and Tom Banks was approved by all Kentville, for Tom was a rising young business man of the town and Elsie's father, old Major Lennon, who kept the summer hotel, had been one of the first settlers. And they had been sweethearts for years.

Since the singer had come to spend a couple of weeks' vacation, however, he had had no eyes for poor little Elsie. He seemed fascinated by the older woman's bright eyes and witty

"On Thursday Morning I Will Give You My Answer."

"Never you mind; you shall have your Tom again," whispered Miss Ingleby encouragingly.

But it seemed a harder problem than Miss Ingleby had expected. She had not meant to lead Tom on. But a woman of the world often forgets that the light interchange of repartee and badinage may be the cut and thrust of mortal earnest to an inexperienced young man.

It was Tom who furnished her with her opportunity that evening when they sat together on the piazza.

"Miss Ingleby," he said, "I want to tell you something. You are going away on Thursday—but I don't want you to go out of my life. You have made me love you—"

"Love you!" she exclaimed. "Why, you are nothing but a boy!"

"I am twenty-five," he answered sullenly. "I know you may be a year or two older than I am. But where love exists age does not count. I—"

"Mr. Banks, listen to me," said the singer. "Do you think it the part of an honorable man to make love to one woman when you are engaged to another?"

"No, I don't," he cried. "But how can one help whom one loves? I am fond of Miss Lennon, but since I have known you that other love of mine has seemed tame and weak. I was only a boy when I became engaged—now you have made me a man."

"Will nothing I can say disillusion you?" asked Miss Ingleby despairingly.

"Nothing," he answered. "When I look at you you seem the incarnation of all beauty to me. I want you; I don't care for honor or duty; I want you."

"On Thursday morning I will give you my answer," she answered.

That was Tuesday evening. Tom Banks lived in a fever of happiness during the following day. He could scarcely attend to the details of his business. His whole being burned with a consuming passion for the beautiful singer. What though a few years in age separted them—two, or three, or five at most? He had known of cases of greater disparity in which happy marriage had resulted. He did not think of Elsie at all.

And she had been a silent witness of that last interview. From her little room in the wing of the house she had seen Tom seize Miss Ingleby's hand and cover it with kisses; she could not tear herself away, even though the sight scorched her heart as though a burning hand were laid there.

She dreaded the evening meal. There were but three other guests at that season; her father and herself sat at a table facing Miss Ingleby, and Tom, who had boarded at the hotel ever since their engagement. Surely Tom would spare her his presence that night. But his infatuation proved too strong for him. He entered and bowed coldly to her, nodded to the old major, who, absorbed in his soup, saw nothing of the little tragedy, and waited for Miss Ingleby to appear. And Elsie could not tear herself away, though she knew that each glance between them was like an arrow in her heart.

The door opened and a woman came in. A gray-haired woman, with wrinkles round her eyes and mouth, and pallid cheeks. She was dressed in a plain black suit of antiquated cut; she was just motherly-looking body of forty-odd years. The major loked up and stared hard.

"Who is that, Elsie?" he whispered, as she seated herself at Tom's table.

"Miss Ingleby!" stammered the girl in amazement.

The rest of the meal was passed in absolute silence. Elsie's eyes took in every detail of the incident. She saw the expression of amazement that crept into Tom's eyes, saw him attempt to speak, choke, and at last rise and hurry from the room. And Miss Ingleby, brave Miss Ingleby who had stripped herself naked of her little artifices to save another woman, sat there unconcerned, the cynosure of all eyes, making a courageous show of eating until the last course was served. Then she went to her room.

There Elsie found her afterward. She understood that the elder woman had made atonement for her offense. There could be none greater than that. The dazzling beauty, the pride of the footlights, turned into a plain old woman to save an innocent girl's heart.

"Why did you do it?" whispered Elsie.

"Because," answered Miss Ingleby slowly, "I was young once, and sweet and innocent—like you."

She kissed her good-bye and none of them saw her again. But on the Piazza Elsie found Tom, walking like a madman. When he saw her he came humbly up to her.

"Elsie," he said, "you know what sort of a fool I have been. I suppose we can never be the same to each other again, but if you will give me a chance—"

"Perhaps we can be more, Tom," she whispered. And she knew that from that moment hers would be the stronger soul; that the innocence of youth had yielded to the knowledge of maturity; that the sheltering love she bore Tom was immeasurably stronger than the girlish adoration which was gone for ever.

HEROES OF THE CANAL ZONE

U. S. Medical Corps Have Accomplished Greatest Triumph Over Nature in History of World.

The cost of preserving a man's health for one day in the Panama canal zone is one cent. The expense of conducting the sanitary department of the canal zone has not exceeded $4,000,000 in the entire time of American occupation, and it is seven years since the last case of yellow fever caused a death in the territory where formerly it was possible for 1,000 Chinese to die of that disease at a single camp.

These were the statements made recently by Dr. Roswell Park, the physician who attended President McKinley, to the New York Herald, on Dr. Park's return to this city from an unofficial trip to the zone.

"Nowhere and never in the world's history," said Dr. Park, "has there been such triumph of man over the forces of Nature. This applies to disease producing agencies as well as to mechanical conditions. Let the public not forget when they think of the Panama canal that underlying the surface of this enormous governmental work is the minute and painstaking investigation in the cause of disease, in the little laboratories where men are hidden from public observation and where they concern themselves with the study of disease germ and culture methods and the use of the microscope.

"And let them not forget also that the heroism displayed by those who have lost their lives in this sort of study is equal to any heroism displayed upon the battlefield or anywhere else. In fact, it is superior to it, because it concerns men giving deliberately, from stern conviction of duty toward others, and it is devold of the glamor and applause which other men meet.

"All praise, then, to the men like Dr. Walter Reid of the United States army, and others who have sacrificed themselves in the attainment of knowledge which is now the property of the world."

The Whistling Man.

"I like the man who whistles at his work. That man I believe will go to heaven!" "Maybe; but that won't be the place where the busy men in his vicinity invite him to go."

What a Pity!

"How long do you think it will be before the militant suffragettes commit murder?" "I don't know, but they are killing a lot of valuable time as it is."

Rapid Strides.

Richard Olney is a very hard man to interview, as all newspaper men will testify, but he has the saving sense of humor that always sends one away smiling. Recently, when he was being questioned regarding the appointment as ambassador to Great Britain that was tendered him he would not talk for publication. Instead, he said, "You know it might be with me the same as it was with Faxon's boy. Old Farmer Judkins opened the paper one morning and exclaimed: 'Well, I swan! How that boy of Si Faxon's is getting along. Last year he was made a furrin embassador, and now, by crickey, the paper says he's persona non grata.'"

The Outcome.

VACATION FOR FARMER AS IMPORTANT AS FOR OTHERS.

ARE ABLE TO AFFORD IT

Expense is an Investment That Means Greater Profits—Need It Worse Than Others.

This is the open season for vacations. But there is one group of men and women, the farmers, in which there are thousands who do not know what a vacation looks like. They never saw one, and they never, only in their dreams, expect to see one. It isn't because they can't afford a vacation and it isn't because they do not need one. In most cases it is just because the farmer and his wife have made themselves believe that they "can't get away."

Farming is as monotonous and exacting work as any. There are longer hours and these hours must be spent out in the heat in continuous and heavy toil. And physical exertion is not all, for the mind of the farmer must be busy with the many problems of various crops, various kinds of live stock, the home and those other interests which should, but too often do not, demand attention from the progressive farmer as a member of his community.

Perhaps as good a time as could be chosen by the farmer for his vacation would be in August, when the growing crops are laid by, the harvesting and threshing has been finished and the hay is up. The hired man and his family can take care of things and go ahead with the regular work of the field. If there is no hand, one may be hired for this purpose. It may be things will not be managed and cared for just as efficiently as by the owner, but the farm employee can be depended on as well as the man lower down in the business office.

The isolation of rural life makes it more necessary that the farmer and his family get a change and a rest. They see little of other people, they live to themselves more than other persons. The vacation will give the communion, relaxation and recreation which they as participants in the tention of American life need.

The farmer can go to the mountains or the seashore or to the lakes as cheaply as can anyone else. The expense is really an investment in new interests and a rested and more energetic mind and body which will enable him to produce greater profits. While the trip will not be one of study, yet the farmer will without effort get new ideas as he passes through other fields to places where he should meet other men and deal with the same problems as his own. And meeting with things and men which are unusual to him on the farm will have the same desirable effect as it does on the business man from the city.

Too many farmers who are looking forward to any sort of a cessation from farm life, plan to stay close at work until they accumulate enough to enable them to move to town. Rather than taking the short annual vacation, they look forward to taking their rest all in one period. Too often this proves a failure, for the farmer, adapted to the life and interests of the country, feels the call of the soil and the crops and herds.

The farmer, like other business men, must learn to see profit in pleasure as well as in labor. While "everybody's goin' fishin'" let him with his wife and his boys and girls pack up and go, too.

JUVENILE COURT ABOLISHED.

Ray County, Missouri, Court Rules That Probate Judge May Not Have Additional Duties.

Of interest to Nodaway county is the following dispatch from Richmond, Mo.:

What is thought to be the first decision of its kind in the state of Missouri was rendered here yesterday. Circuit Judge Frank Divelbiss ruled that for a probate judge to act as judge of the juvenile court, as provided by the last session of the state legislature for counties with less than 50,000 inhabitants, is unconstitutional. He based his decision on a statute which says that the probate courts of the state shall have uniform power, and he held that a probate judge in exercising additional functions as juvenile court judge would be transgressing the provision for uniformity.

The decision grew out of an attempt of the court to provide for taking the three children of Mrs. Mary Renfro from her on the grounds that they were not receiving proper care.

George Crowley is the probate judge of Ray county and the proceeding was a friendly one, because he was anxious to learn whether his new office was constitutional.

SMOKING AND DRINKING MARK.

Convivial Ones Consume 143,300,000 Gallons of Whisky and Brandy, 64,500,000 Barrels Beer.

The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarets and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based on internal revenue receipts.

The drinkers of the country consumed the enormous total of 143,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy, an increase of 7,500,000 gallons over the previous year and breaking the former high record of the fiscal year 1907 by 7,300,000 gallons. Sixty-four millions five hundred thousand barrels of beer flowed down the throats of lovers of the amber brew, exceeding 1911's great record by more than 1,000,000 barrels.

Smokers puffed into space 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarets. This was 217,000,000 cigars and 2,790,000,000 cigarets more than ever before had been consumed in a single year. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco, or 9,400,000 pounds more than the consumption of 1912.

Chewers likewise held their own, disposing of 33,200,000 pounds, an increase of more than 3,000,000 pounds.

The number of saloons decreased by 18,000, the retail liquor dealers numbering only about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the federal government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

Elmo Light Plant Sells for $101.

The Elmo electric light plant was sold by Sheriff Wallace at an execution sale Friday for the sum of $101. It was bought by the Lee Electric Light company of Clarinda, Ia. This company already furnishes College Springs and Blanchard with light, and it is probable that it will extend its wires from Blanchard to Elmo, furnishing that town with power from the central Clarinda plant.

The sale was in payment of a $65 debt for which Jud Wren was awarded judgment against J. L. Fuqua at the last term of court.

Back From Des Moines.

John Murrin returned Friday from a week's visit at Des Moines, Ia., with his daughter, Mrs. G. R. Cornelius. Mrs. Murrin will remain for another week's visit with her daughter and will return to the city, being accompanied by her.

Miss Gladys Goforth and Miss Lola Cranor of Albany, State Normal students, are spending the week end at home.

Miss Alice Tilson of St. Joseph, who has been visiting the families of her brothers, W. R. Tilson and J. L. Tilson, returned home Friday evening.

NEW WHEAT SHOWN TO BE OF EXTRA FINE QUALITY.

YIELD IS LARGER, TOO

Thirty-Nine Bushels Average On the Wright Farm—One Firm Has Contracted for Over 150 Cars.

Nodaway county is going to have bumper crops, at least that is the report you hear all over the county. While the storm of last Sunday night did some damage, still it was not as bad as it was thought to be. The crops never looked better, and a trip over the county will soon convince you of that fact.

The wheat yield promises to be much bigger than last year, and there is a larger acreage than ever before. U. S. Wright, on his farm east of the city, had thirty-nine bushels to the acre for fourteen acres. Threshing of the wheat has just started.

Leet & Cook, grain dealers here, have contracted for a large amount of wheat. They received some of it this week and it tested sixty-one pounds to the bushel. This is a good quality of wheat. They have repaired and fixed over their elevator near the Burlington depot and expect to send out many more cars than they did last year. Already over 150 cars have been contracted for. These people will also receive wheat at other places in the county.

Fred Armstrong, living east of the city reports that he will only get about half an oats crop. He intends to start work on his oats in the next day or so. He says corn is fine and that the wheat is also in excellent condition.

Attended Brother's Funeral.

Thomas Wells of Stillwater, Okla., who was called to Maryville by the death of his brother, W. R. Wells, has returned home. He also visited the family of his son, William Wells of Hopkins.

Left for Denver.

Mrs. Ed Long and daughter, Miss Zella, of King City, who have been guests of their cousin, Mrs. J. E. Melvin, went to Barnard Friday evening to visit J. E. Long and family.

THE BAILEY OBSEQUIES.

Rev. Gilbert Cox Came From Kansas City to Conduct Service—Several Out-of-Town Relatives Here.

The funeral services for John W. Bailey, who died Thursday evening at his home on Lawn avenue, were held Friday afternoon at the family home and were attended by many old friends and relatives.

Rev. Gilbert S. Cox of the First M. E. church, who is spending his vacation in Kansas City, came to conduct the funeral. A quartet composed of Mr. P. O. Landon, Mrs. Charles Moore, Miss Jannette Mutz and Mr. John Mutz, with accompaniment by Miss Lettie Walkup, sang "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus Calls Me Over the Mountain." The minister brought a beautiful message from the 23d Psalm.

Interment took place in Oak Hill cemetery. The pallbearers were three sons of the late Mr. Bailey, Charles Bailey of Ravenwood, Ira Bailey of Maryville and Benjamin Bailey of Clarks, Neb.; Oscar Koch of Fredonia, Kan., Thomas Wachtel of Rosendale and Milton Wachtel of Savannah.

Other relatives from a distance attending the funeral were Mrs. Milton Wachtel and Miss Ina Wachtel of Savannah, John Wachtel of Rosendale, Mrs. Emma Koch of Fredonia, Kan.; Mrs. John Bloomfield and family of Parnell, Henry Wachtel, Robert Wachtel, Arthur Wachtel and George Wachtel of Graham, Charles Patterson and Mr. Stalks of Orrsburg.

Suits Filed.

The following perfect title suits were filed Saturday in Circuit Clerk Rathbun's office:

Grace V. Ferguson vs. Virgil K. LaMarr, and Grace V. Ferguson vs. Samuel Owens. Peery & Robinson are the attorneys for the plaintiffs in both suits.

Struck by Lightning.

The White Cloud Baptist church, located six miles south and one mile west of Maryville, was struck by lightning on Friday afternoon. A little damage was done to the church building.

LIVES IN FILTH!

FLY MORE DANGEROUS THAN RATTLESNAKE.

KILL HIM IN THE EGG

The Time to Swat the Fly is Before He Gets Wings—Kills More Than Bullets.

The following questions and answers were prepared by the Indiana state board of health and have been widely copied:

1. Where is the fly born? In manure and filth.

2. Where does the fly live? In every kind of filth.

3. Is anything too filthy for the fly to eat? No.

4. (a) Where does he go when he leaves the surface closet and the manure pile and the spittoon? Into the kitchen and dining room. (b) What does he do there? He walks on the bread, fruit and vegetables. He wipes his feet on the butter and bathes in the milk.

5. Does the fly visit the patient sick with typhoid fever, consumption and cholera infantum? He does—and he may call on you next.

6. Is the fly dangerous? He is man's worst pest and more dangerous than wild beasts or rattlesnakes.

7. What disease does the fly carry? He carries typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaint. How? On his wings and hairy feet. What is his correct name? Typhoid fly.

8. Did he ever kill anyone? He killed more American soldiers in the Spanish-American war than did the bullets of the Spaniards.

9. Where are the greatest number of cases of typhoid fever, consumption and summer complaint? Where there are the most flies.

10. Where are the most flies? Where there is the most filth.

11. Why should we kill the fly? Because he may kill us.

12. When shall we kill the fly? Kill him before he gets wings—kill him when he is a maggot in the manure pile—kill him while he is in the egg state.

13. How? Keep the stables dry and clean and don't allow any manure to stay on the premises longer than one week. Have all other filth and trash accumulating on your premises removed or burned at least once a week.

14. If your neighbor fails to comply with these rules and allows flies to breed on his premises to visit you, screen your doors and windows and keep them out.

Y. M. C. A. ENTERTAINMENT.

Given Friday Night in the First M. E. Church Warranted a Larger Attendance.

The entertainment given in the First Methodist church Friday night under the auspices of the Normal Y. M. C. A. warranted a larger attendance than it had. The lecture by Rev. Lester M. Jones of Pickering, who has been a student at the Union Theological seminary of New York City for several years, was very good. His subject was "The Future State in Great Religions." Rev. Jones gave a resume of the religions of the world, and placed special emphasis on the work of the Christian religion and its future position among the religions of the world.

The other numbers on the program were a reading from the Merchant of Venice by Prof. Harry Miller, an organ solo by Prof. P. O. Landon and a vocal solo by Harry Mutz.

Fred Claycomb Married.

Fred Claycomb, who is employed at Garten & Trusty's restaurant, was married this week at Topeka, Kan., to Lena C. Carder, who formerly was employed by C. Sweitzer in his cigar factory. They returned to Maryville Friday and have gone to housekeeping on South Buchanan street.

Mrs. J. D. Bolin and daughters went to Arkoe Thursday evening to visit Mrs. Glen Swinford.

We Should Be Agitated.

American smokers consumed 7,707,000,000 cigars during the year 1913, or 217,000,000 more than ever before. At 5 cents each this would amount to $385,350,000. These same smokers touched their matches to 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Another increase, this time of 2,790,000,000.

But we should be agitated. A cable dispatch from London says that the English women, who have been cigarette smokers for a number of years, have added pipes and cigars to their tobacco list. And at that the cigars are fifty-centers.

Clean Teeth and Clean Mouths.

The tooth brush is of more value to the health of a child than dumbbells or Indian clubs.

Pure air in a school room is impossible as long as the mouths of the children are allowed to be in an insanitary state.

In economic value to the community oral hygiene is second to none.

Sixty per cent of the absentees from school can be traced directly to defective teeth.

Healthy teeth mean a healthy body.

The mouth is the gateway to the body; follow the methods of every good housewife. Keep the gateway clean.

Ten cents invested in a tooth brush may mean $10 saved on a doctor bill.

John F. Dowden recently had J. F. Stephens paint the picture of his fine stallion, Hastings Boy No. 22389, and the picture will be on exhibition at the museum at St. Joseph. It is a good one. Mr. Stephens is well experienced in this kind of work and has done work for Nodaway county breeders for many years. About thirty or forty years ago Mr. Stephens did the same kind of work for the late James Prather, when he had a number of race horses.

The women of the First M. E. church will have charge of the dining tent at the coming Maryville Chautauqua, August 9-17. Manager Landon of the Chautauqua gave the contract to them Friday afternoon. Breakfast, dinner and supper will be served each of the nine days. The women of the First Baptist church had this work every year but two since Maryville's first Chautauqua in 1905. One of those years was when the Redpath bureau put on the program in a tent by the Franklin school park, and the next year when the Buchanan Street Methodist church women served. It is a tremendous task and one that should be appreciated by Chautauqua goers.

C. W. B. M. Meeting.

The C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church held its regular monthly meeting in the church parlors Friday afternoon with Mrs. M. T. Henderson as leader. The topic for the general study was "Fruitage for My Educational Plants," and was participated in by Mrs. A. T. Fisher, Mrs. A. J. Anderson and Mrs. George Hartley on special topics concerning the Bible chairs the board has in its church universities, mountain schools, and schools among the Japanese on the Pacific coast and those in Jamaica and India. Mrs. J. W. Ray conducted an interesting quiz. Plans were commenced for next year's work that were aided considerably by a letter from Mrs. O. W. Lawrence, state secretary for the C. W. B. M., who wrote encouragingly to the members here of next year's prospects for the large work. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. R. L. McDougal, during the business session was very gratifying to all, as it showed the amount of $84.90 used in the board's work for the quarter ending June 30. One new member was added, Mrs. C. A. Barbour. An enjoyable social hour followed with Mrs. James B. Robinson, Mrs. George Hartley and Mrs. F. P. Reuillard as hostesses. The annual picnic was to have been held Friday but has been postponed to a later date.

Still Working for Playgrounds.

The Mothers' Circle held its monthly meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John P. Price. On account of the illness of Mrs. W. C. Van Cleve, the president, Mrs. Leslie Dean presided. During the business meeting, Mrs. Berney Harris, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported what that committee is doing toward securing the old cemetery by the Jefferson ward school for a public park and playground. If this can be done it has been suggested that a tablet be erected in one corner of the grounds, bearing the names of those buried there. It was voted to use the funds on hand for the purchase of a slide, a contrivance on the order of "shoot-the-chutes," for one of the school grounds of the city. The Circle declared itself in favor of a safe and sane Fourth for another year. A committee was appointed to arrange for a picnic for the members of the Circle and their families about August 1. The program was to have been a patriotic one, but was not followed altogether, as Mrs. Jesse Colden, whose topic was to have been on patriotism, was unable to be present and Mrs. Omar Catterson gave instead a reading on better babies contests in Iowa. Roll call was responded to by relating incidents from the lives of our presidents.

Mr. T. C. Hollowell Married.

Mr. T. C. Hollowell, a well known traveling salesman out of Maryville, was married on Wednesday, July 2, to Mrs. Anna Hollowell of St. Paul, Minn., who was the widow of his cousin, E. J. Hollowell of St. Paul, who died eight years ago. It was not the intention of the bride and groom to announce their marriage until the first of September, when Mrs. Hollowell will arrive in Maryville to make her home, owing to the marriage of her son, which will occur shortly before that time in St. Paul. But the secret came out in some way and The Democrat-Forum was given permission Friday by Mr. Hollowell to announce the happy event. Mrs. Hollowell has four sons, two of them dentists and two yet in college.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die.

At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well.

I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardui. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardui is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years.

Your druggist sells it. Please try it.

BLUFFED WAY TO FREEDOM

Wat Bowie, a scout for the Confederate army during the Civil war, was a young Maryland lawyer at the time the great conflict began. After months of successful work, he was captured and taken to Washington, and sentenced to be hanged. He made his escape, and in "On Hazardous Service," Mr. W. G. Beymer tells of the weeks that he was followed by secret service men and small details of Federal cavalry, and how, by his very audacity and quick wit, he escaped recapture.

He blundered into a camp of them one morning at dawn, and saw instantly that retreat was impossible; they were ready to open fire with a dozen revolvers. Without hesitation, he strode up to the men and shouted, indignantly:

"You make mighty free with my rails! With all this wood round, you did not need to burn my fences!" He seemed very angry.

"Who are you?" a corporal stammered.

"The owner of the rails, of course!" And then, apparently somewhat mollified, he went on: "Well, well! War is war; but don't do any more damage than you can help, boys." He sat down with them to their breakfast, and chatted with them pleasantly. One of them asked if he had seen Wat Bowie, and described him accurately. At the description, they all stared at him, and moved uneasily, in doubt as to what was to be done. He tallied with the description in every respect. But his insolence in walking up to them and upbraiding them for burning "his" rails made them doubt their own eyes.

"Why, yes," he drawled, "Wat Bowie was in these parts last week. I know him well. They say he has gone to the north part of the county, where he hails from. I don't know, though, as to that."

Then rising and stretching himself, he looked down into their doubt-filled eyes and laughed at them, laughed in their very faces, and said:

"I'm glad you all met me on m' own land. You might have made trouble for me elsewhere, for they all say I look like him a lot. Good-by, boys! Good luck!"—Youth's Companion.

HAVE GREAT FAITH IN TREE

Natives of Egypt Believe Saint With Healing Powers Has a Dwelling in the Branches.

The tourist who is ferried over the Nile from old Cairo to the island of Rhoda is shown the Nilometer, which dates from Roman times, and the old gardens near it, and is then hurried back to resume the usual route of the guides. By so doing, however, he misses one of the most curious sights in all Cairo—the huge tree known to the native as the mandura, says Wide World. It is so called from a saint who is supposed to work miracles and effect cures upon those who visit this tree and perform certain traditional rites. The patient must offer to the saint the cloth which enveloped the affected limb, pluck off two leaves from the tree and tie them on the diseased part with another cloth, leaving the first behind. The natives have great faith in the tree and the visitor will always find one or more present, performing the rites of supplication. The tree, while not very high, has a large spread, and, as it is partly concealed by others near it, even the visitor who has knowledge of its existence is apt to give up the search in despair, though he may be within a short distance of it. The tree at present is entirely denuded of its leaves except in the upper branches, while the trunk and lower branches are almost concealed by the mass of rags that are nailed to it and there left to rot in wind and weather. Patients may be seen pressing their faces on these or rubbing the afflicted parts against them, as they mutter prayers and gaze earnestly up among the branches, where they believe the saint's spirit resides. The upper branches are plentifully decked with little pennons or colored flags, which give it quite a festal appearance.

Closing Freiberg Mines.

Gluckauf reports that the mines of Freiberg, Saxony, will be closed at the end of September this year, but probably one mine will be kept open for the purposes of the Bergakademie and the Bergschule, says the Engineering and Mining Journal. The Freiberg mines were first opened in 1168 and in the next century they were actively exploited. In 1572 they made their maximum production. In 1791 they supported a population of 5,187 souls. In 1878 there were 38 mines in operation, employing a technical staff of 250 men and about 6,000 miners and laborers. The fall in silver in 1893 affected these mines severely and since then their production has been steadily dwindling. From beginning to end they have yielded over 5,000,000 kilograms of silver. Many American engineers obtained their education at Freiberg.

Well?

"Your wife gave a beautiful address."

"Yes?" replied Mr. Meekton.

"She said it was woman's especial duty to be kind to dumb animals."

"I heard about it."

"But you don't seem impressed."

"It doesn't seem to be anything that interests me—not unless you are going to put husbands in the dumb animal class."

WOMAN'S PROBLEM

Stripped Herself of Her Little Artifices to Save a Young Girl.

By FRANK FILSON.

"Come here, girl; don't look at me as if I were a dragon!"

Elsie went forward and looked at Miss Ingleby with an expression of so much mingled hatred and admiration that the elder woman flashed her white teeth and her eyes twinkled exactly as they did in the posters with which almost every hoarding in the United States had been decorated at one time or another.

She went forward defiantly, but a moment later somehow she found that she was crying upon Miss Ingleby's shoulder, while the singer caressed her and patted her hair gently.

"So I have stolen her beau away from her and she wants him back!" whispered Miss Ingleby. "Isn't that so, dearie?"

Elsie raised her head. "I shouldn't mind if—if you meant to marry Tom," she sobbed. "But I know you are only amusing yourself with him, because Tom is much younger than you."

"How old are you, child?" inquired Miss Ingleby.

"Twenty," said Elsie defiantly.

"And Tom?"

"Tom is twenty-five. And you must be nearly thirty," said Elsie. "So I know you don't mean to marry Tom. And we were to be married at Christmas, and now—now he won't speak to me."

The match between Elsie Lennon and Tom Banks was approved by all Kentville, for Tom was a rising young business man of the town and Elsie's father, old Major Lennon, who kept the summer hotel, had been one of the first settlers. And they had been sweethearts for years.

Since the singer had come to spend a couple of weeks' vacation, however, he had had no eyes for poor little Elsie. He seemed fascinated by the older woman's bright eyes and witty talk, her mature ways and air of the world.

"On Thursday Morning I Will Give You My Answer."

"Never you mind; you shall have your Tom again," whispered Miss Ingleby encouragingly.

But it seemed a harder problem than Miss Ingleby had expected. She had not meant to lead Tom on. But a woman of the world often forgets that the light interchange of repartee and badinage may be the cut and thrust of mortal earnest to an inexperienced young man.

It was Tom who furnished her with her opportunity that evening when they sat together on the piazza.

"Miss Ingleby," he said, "I want to tell you something. You are going away on Thursday—but I don't want you to go out of my life. You have made me love you—"

"Love you!" she exclaimed. "Why, you are nothing but a boy!"

"I am twenty-five," he answered sullenly. "I know you may be a year or two older than I am. But where love exists age does not count. I—"

"Mr. Banks, listen to me," said the singer. "Do you think it the part of an honorable man to make love to one woman when you are engaged to another?"

"No, I don't," he cried. "But how can one help whom one loves? I am fond of Miss Lennon, but since I have known you that other love of mine has seemed tame and weak. I was only a boy when I became engaged—now you have made me a man."

"Will nothing I can say disillusion you?" asked Miss Ingleby despairingly.

"Nothing," he answered. "When I look at you you seem the incarnation of all beauty to me. I want you; I don't care for honor or duty; I want you."

Miss Ingleby rose up slowly. Her face was pale, her lips trembling.

"On Thursday morning I will give you my answer," she answered.

That was Tuesday evening. Tom Banks lived in a fever of happiness during the following day. He could scarcely attend to the details of his business. His whole being burned with a consuming passion for the beautiful singer. What though a few years in age separted them—two, or three, or five at most? He had known of cases of greater disparity in which happy marriage had resulted. He did not think of Elsie at all.

And she had been a silent witness of that last interview. From her little room in the wing of the house she had seen Tom seize Miss Ingleby's hand and cover it with kisses; she could not tear herself away, even though the sight scorched her heart as though a burning hand were laid there.

She dreaded the evening meal. There were but three other guests at that season; her father and herself sat at a table facing Miss Ingleby, and Tom, who had boarded at the hotel ever since their engagement. Surely Tom would spare her his presence that night. But his infatuation proved too strong for him. He entered and bowed coldly to her, nodded to the old major, who, absorbed in his soup, saw nothing of the little tragedy, and waited for Miss Ingleby to appear. And Elsie could not tear herself away, though she knew that each glance between them was like an arrow in her heart.

The door opened and a woman came in. A gray-haired woman, with wrinkles round her eyes and mouth, and pallid cheeks. She was dressed in a plain black suit of antiquated cut; she was just motherly-looking body of forty-odd years. The major loked up and stared hard.

"Who is that, Elsie?" he whispered, as she seated herself at Tom's table.

"Miss Ingleby!" stammered the girl in amazement.

The rest of the meal was passed in absolute silence. Elsie's eyes took in every detail of the incident. She saw the expression of amazement that crept into Tom's eyes, saw him attempt to speak, choke, and at last rise and hurry from the room. And Miss Ingleby, brave Miss Ingleby who had stripped herself naked of her little artifices to save another woman, sat there unconcerned, the cynosure of all eyes, making a courageous show of eating until the last course was served. Then she went to her room.

There Elsie found her afterward. She understood that the elder woman had made atonement for her offense. There could be none greater than that. The dazzling beauty, the pride of the footlights, turned into a plain old woman to save an innocent girl's heart.

"Why did you do it?" whispered Elsie.

"Because," answered Miss Ingleby slowly, "I was young once, and sweet and innocent—like you."

She kissed her good-bye and none of them saw her again. But on the Piazza Elsie found Tom, walking like a madman. When he saw her he came humbly up to her.

"Elsie," he said, "you know what sort of a fool I have been. I suppose we can never be the same to each other again, but if you will give me a chance—"

"Perhaps we can be more, Tom," she whispered. And she knew that from that moment hers would be the stronger soul; that the innocence of youth had yielded to the knowledge of maturity; that the sheltering love she bore Tom was immeasurably stronger than the girlish adoration which was gone for ever.

HEROES OF THE CANAL ZONE

U. S. Medical Corps Have Accomplished Greatest Triumph Over Nature in History of World.

The cost of preserving a man's health for one day in the Panama canal zone is one cent. The expense of conducting the sanitary department of the canal zone has not exceeded $4,000,000 in the entire time of American occupation, and it is seven years since the last case of yellow fever caused a death in the territory where formerly it was possible for 1,000 Chinese to die of that disease at a single camp.

These were the statements made recently by Dr. Roswell Park, the physician who attended President McKinley, to the New York Herald, on Dr. Park's return to this city from an unofficial trip to the zone.

"Nowhere and never in the world's history," said Dr. Park, "has there been such triumph of man over the forces of Nature. This applies to disease producing agencies as well as to mechanical conditions. Let the public not forget when they think of the Panama canal that underlying the surface of this enormous governmental work is the minute and painstaking investigation in the cause of disease, in the little laboratories where men are hidden from public observation and where they concern themselves with the study of disease germ and culture methods and the use of the microscope.

"And let them not forget also that the heroism displayed by those who have lost their lives in this sort of study is equal to any heroism displayed upon the battlefield or anywhere else. In fact, it is superior to it, because it concerns men giving deliberately, from stern conviction of duty toward others, and it is devoid of the glamor and applause which other men meet.

"All praise, then, to the men like Dr. Walter Reid of the United States army, and others who have sacrificed themselves in the attainment of knowledge which is now the property of the world."

The Whistling Man.

"I like the man who whistles at his work. That man I believe will go to heaven!" "Maybe; but that won't be the place where the busy men in his vicinity invite him to go."

What a Pity!

"How long do you think it will be before the militant suffragettes commit murder?" "I don't know, but they are killing a lot of valuable time as it is."

Rapid Strides.

Richard Olney is a very hard man to interview, as all newspaper men will testify, but he has the saving sense of humor that always sends one away smiling. Recently, when he was being questioned regarding the appointment as ambassador to Great Britain that was tendered him he would not talk for publication. Instead, he said, "You know it might be with me the same as it was with Faxon's boy. Old Farmer Judkins opened the paper one morning and exclaimed: 'Well, I swan! How that boy of Si Faxon's is getting along. Last year he was made a furrin embassador, and now, by crickey, the paper says he's persona non grata.'"

The Outcome.

She—Well, that's all right as long as you don't follow your usual course and swallow the insult.
